Furthermore, in the event of full or partial non-payment on the due dates, Michelin may suspend all deliveries of the Products until the outstanding payments have been made or require advance payment or any other form of payment guarantee for the Client's future orders.
- Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the transfer of risks relative to the Product to the Client occurs when the Products are handed over to the Client by the carrier, at which time delivery of the Products to the Client by Michelin is considered to have taken place.

The Client undertakes to maintain and insure the Products against all risks to which they may be exposed or which they may incur after delivery, for the benefit of their owner. In the event of full or partial non-payment of the price of the Products on the due date, Michelin reserves the right to immediately reclaim the Products from the Client, it being understood that the Products still in the possession of the Client will be deemed to be those which have not been paid for. The Client will bear all costs for the return and reconditioning of the Products. The defaulting Client must return the unpaid Products at its own expense and risk upon formal notification by Michelin via registered letter with acknowledgment of receipt.
- If Michelin is obligated to reclaim the Products, it will not be required to return any partial advance payments made by the Client if these can be offset by the sums owed by the Client (particularly return and reconditioning costs).
- Compensation may be required between the amount owed by Michelin to the Client and vice versa, even if all the conditions for statutory compensation are not met.
- Any discounts, reductions, or rebates based on certain sales and/or subject to periodic conditions are due to the Client only if, on the planned date of payment, all payable debts to Michelin have been paid in full.
